

Joe Mulvey on The New “Hell-Care” Bill

The new healthcare bill was recently passed. At least I think it was. It may still need to pass three filibusters, seven Senate rulings, a half-o-dozen Supreme Court hearings, two-and-a-half-dozen minority party Representative communal conventions, and a good-luck-approval by Ms. Cleo. All this after months of bipartisan badgering, third-party mumbling, a couple of “You Lie’s,” threats of socialism, and the occasional Muslim scapegoat.

This country is pathetic, folks. We are the unhealthiest nation in the existence of the universe, according to ‘open-your-damn-eyes.’ We constantly destroy our minds and bodies and complain when we can’t get next-morning transplant surgery for an organ that was perfectly good a year ago. You reap what you sow, people

So, what will this bill do? Well, what did Medicaid do? Ask anyone living below the poverty line and they will tell you “not much.” This bill will most likely expand Medicaid to the few million people in America making 25 cents more an hour. That means more people for the blood-sucking hospitals and insurance agencies to reject or refuse to operate on.

What if your employer refuses to give you insurance and decides instead to take the financial hit? What will you do then? Do you have enough to pay the ‘mandatory’ government insurance fees? If not, what will the penalty be? Will you have enough to pay the penalty fees for not having enough to pay the insurance fees on top of paying the insurance fees?

Socialism! Communism! Fascism! Satanism! Get a grip, people. Just do what we’ve been doing for hundreds of years now... wait and die. It will happen eventually. Why prolong it? If you decide to prolong it and decide to stay on this wonderful Earth in this wonderful nation of ours, you can look forward to more years of polluted air, polluted seas, polluted minds, triple-cheese-bacon-deluxe-burgers, greasy-saliva-soaked-stale-french-fries, and all the other wonders of the world.

So, be an American. Do what we have always done. We're killing ourselves. If we're not killing ourselves, we're killing each other. Why stop what we've been so successful at for hundreds of years? So, take your American flag (make sure it doesn't touch the ground or you'll have to burn it), wave it high and long, and be proud to be part of the freest nation in the world!
